5	2020	Ms. Nima Arora, IAS Chief Executive Officer, Zill Parishad, Jalna	“Srushiti Bhu-Sudharak Kendra (SBSK)” SBSK is a solution to the problem of Rural Waste Management (implemented in Badhapur Taluka, Jalna district) This project aims at achieving cleanliness by empowering the village women. The entire project is run by women from collection, production, transportation to branding and sales. Two to five women from different self-help groups (SHGs) in each village join hands to tackle the menace of garbage. Their details are recorded by SBSK Trust comprising of seven trustees amongst whom roles of C.E.O. ZP, Dy. C.E.O (SBM), Project Manager (MSRLM) and Agriculture officer are prominent. Swachhta Doots collect, process and transport waste from the village. Recyclable and Non-recyclable wastes are collected door to door as well as from public places in the village which are then segregated into components like glass, paper, plastic and metals. Each of these items has their purchase price fixed by the SBSK trust depending on dynamic market rates. Organic waste is decomposed into manure. Swachhta Doots then sell both the decomposed manure and the segregated inorganic waste to their respective gram Sangh Karyalaya that acts as the village level stockiest and (as a buyer) makes immediate payment to them. Accumulated stock goes to Srushiti Bhu-Sudharak Kendra from where the stock is finally transported to 1) Wholesale/retail agriculture market for sale of manure 2) Recycling units for processing of non- biodegradable waste. Outcome: SBSK and the convergence model generate hundreds of green jobs without putting financial burden on Z.P. Moreover, it has an indirect but powerful impact in the form of improved health and hygiene at village level. It is an excellent example of people’s involvement and women empowerment in rural areas.
